Good morning

Thank you. Yes I was specifically looking for regulations on fence height, proximity to lot line, and direction facing. I have already found the RSA's per the state and saw many other towns have ordinances regarding such. Was curious to see if the Town has anything likewise. From what I found on the website, I could not find anything for residential fencing akin. So residential fencing would fall exclusively under the RSA.

Thank you for your input
Steve

Hello Steve,

Just my standard disclaimer that nothing I communicate or suggest represents a binding opinion or decision of any Goshen Board as no application has been submitted to, reviewed by, or voted upon by a relevant Goshen Board.

The Town doesn't have specific fencing/barrier regulations that I could find. If this is not time sensitive, I would like to consult with the Boards and see what they may be able to offer. Would you mind if I checked with them? I do know that during land use applications we have discussed barrier provisions.

Without additional detail this is what I can provide:

- There are fence/barrier considerations for excavation sites, see Excavation Regulations.
- There are fence/barrier considerations for driveways, see Driveway Regulations.
- There are fence/barrier considerations for wireless facilities, see Zoning and Building Ordinances.
- Without checking with the Boards I would caution awareness near property lines.
- There are state RSAs regarding fencing/barriers that you would want to review as well.
- Any fencing or barriers near a waterway should check with NH DES to see if permitting is required.

Let me know if there is anything else we can look into, to help with your question.

Hello Alicea,

Do you happen to know if there are any town ordinances regarding fences? If so, can you point them in my right direction? I can't find them on the town website

Thank you for any assistance you can provide.
